

Making the Most of Your Next Transition

Are you ready to make a move? Is there something more you would like to explore? Join author and seasoned business executive Linda Rossetti for an interactive discussion about making the most of your next transition. Linda has spent the last decade researching how adults make personal and professional changes. She will share highlights from her research on the key success factors for making meaningful changes in our lives. She will also lead us through a series of exercises designed to help you clarify your next moves. Don't miss it!
